80. Defendants give notice that they intend to rely upon other defenses that may become available or become apparent during subsequent proceedings in this matter and reserve the right to amend their Answer to assert such defenses.

FIRST COUNTERCLAIM

(Faithless Servant, asserted by Domino)

81. Domino repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 - 80 above as if fully set forth herein.

82. Ambridge was employed by Domino in a position of trust and confidence, owed a duty of fidelity to Domino, and was at all times bound to exercise the utmost good faith and loyalty in the performance of her duties. As an employee of Domino, Plaintiff was prohibited from acting in a disloyal manner, or in any way inconsistent with the employment relationship.

83. While employed at Domino, Ambridge engaged in outside business activities to the detriment of Domino and/or to the exclusion of her duty to devote her time and energies to Domino.

84. In particular, Ambridge, while employed by Domino, and during regular business hours during which she was supposed to be working for Domino, used Domino resources and monies to perform work for others and pocketed the revenues for herself, without the knowledge or consent of Domino.

85. For example, Ambridge agreed to photograph a San Francisco home for a third party, and did so while employed by Domino and using Domino's resources and expenses. Ambridge kept the revenue for herself.

86. Further, upon information and belief, Ambridge similarly performed photography work for the HighBoy in January 2015, using Domino resources and wrongfully retaining the revenue -- all while a full-time employee of Domino.

87. Second, while employed by Domino, Ambridge misappropriated Domino property by emailing Domino-owned photographs to her personal email address. Upon information and belief, Ambridge used, and is improperly using, such photographs to obtain revenues for herself, without compensating Domino.

88. Plaintiff's disloyalty permeated her services in its most material and substantial part.

89. Accordingly, as a consequence of the foregoing, Domino is entitled to recover all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, other expenses paid on her behalf, lost revenues and expenses as a result of her misconduct, revenues collected by Ambridge through the conduct described above, plus interest, costs, reasonable attorneys' fees and punitive damages, as allowable by law.

SECOND COUNTERCLAIM

(Breach of Fiduciary Duty, asserted by Domino)

90. Domino repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 - 89 above as if fully set forth herein.

91. Ambridge was employed by Domino in a position of trust and confidence, owed a duty of fidelity to Domino, and was at all times bound to exercise the utmost good faith and loyalty in the performance of her duties. As an employee of Domino, Plaintiff was prohibited from acting in a disloyal manner, or in any way inconsistent with the employment relationship.

92. While employed at Domino, Ambridge engaged in outside business activities to the detriment of Domino and/or to the exclusion of her duty to devote her time and energies to Domino.

93. In particular, Ambridge, while employed by Domino, and during regular business hours during which she was supposed to be working for Domino, used Domino resources and monies to perform work for others and pocketed the revenues for herself, without the knowledge or consent of Domino.

94. For example, Ambridge agreed to photograph a San Francisco home for a third party, and did so while employed by Domino and using Domino's resources and expenses. Ambridge kept the revenue for herself.

95. Further, upon information and belief, Ambridge similarly performed photography work for the HighBoy in January 2015, using Domino resources and wrongfully retaining the revenue -- all while a full-time employee of Domino.

96. Second, while employed by Domino, Ambridge misappropriated Domino property by emailing Domino-owned photographs to her personal email address. Upon information and belief, Ambridge used, and is improperly using, such photographs to obtain revenues for herself, without compensating Domino.

97. Third, shortly after Domino terminated Ambridge's employment, Ambridge intentionally and willfully deleted the contents of her Domino email Inbox, unbeknownst to Domino. Ambridge did so while she still had access to the emails and a continuing duty as an employee and fiduciary to preserve the emails. Further, upon information and belief, at the time Ambridge destroyed the emails, she was contemplating a claim against Domino, and for this reason as well had a duty to preserve the emails.

98. Ambridge's deletion and spoliation of her email Inbox has caused harm and prejudice to Domino. A key issue in this action is whether Ambridge, by virtue of her role at Domino, is exempt from any entitlement to overtime compensation. Correspondence relating to her role is directly relevant to proving her role at Domino. By destroying the evidence, Plaintiff has harmed and caused damage to Domino, including hampering Domino's ability to defend itself in this action, causing Domino to incur additional expenses in this action including the necessity of proving Ambridge's destruction of evidence and seeking remedies therefore, and causing harm to Domino as a result of the loss of company property.

99. Accordingly, as a consequence of the foregoing, Domino is entitled to recover all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, other expenses paid on her behalf, lost revenues and expenses as a result of her misconduct, revenues collected by Ambridge through the conduct described above, and damages caused to Domino as the result of Ambridge's destruction of evidence, plus interest, costs, reasonable attorneys' fees and punitive damages, as allowable by law.

THIRD COUNTERCLAIM

(Breach of Contract, By Domino)

100. Domino repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1-99 above as if fully set forth herein.

101. Ambridge and Domino entered into an Employee Proprietary Information and Inventions Agreement effective on the commencement of Ambridge's employment with Domino (the "Agreement").

102. Under the Agreement, Ambridge expressly agreed not to compete with Domino or perform work for any other person without prior written consent of Domino:

As an Employee. During my employment with the Company, I will not directly or indirectly: (i) Cause any person to leave their employment with the Company (other than terminating subordinate employees in the course of my duties for the Company); (ii) Solicit any Business Partner; (iii) act in Any Capacity in or with respect to any commercial activity which competes, or is reasonably likely to compete, with any business that the Company conducts, proposes to conduct or demonstrably anticipates conducting, at any time during my employment (a "Competing Business"); or (iv) enter into in an employment, consulting or other similar relationship with another person or entity that requires a significant time commitment without the prior written consent of the Company.

(Agreement, § 4(c)).

103. Further, Ambridge expressly agreed that, for twelve months after termination, she would not solicit any Business Partner of Domino:

After Termination. For the period of Twelve (12) months immediately following termination of my employment with the Company (for any or no reason, whether voluntary or involuntary), I will not directly or indirectly: (i) Cause any person to leave their employment with the Company; (ii) Solicit any Business Partner. The foregoing time frames shall be increased by the period of time from the commencement of any violation of the foregoing provisions until such time as I have cured such violation.

(Agreement, § 4(d)).

104. Ambridge breached § 4(c) of her Agreement by, inter alia, engaging in competing and/or other work as more fully set forth in paragraphs 84-87 above.

105. Further, Ambridge breached § 4(d) of her Agreement by, inter alia, soliciting Abrams Books, a Business Partner of Domino, to publish her proposed book entitled “Southern Style Now”.

106. Domino fully performed its obligations under the Agreement.

107. Domino has suffered damages arising from Ambridge’s breaches of the Agreement.

108. Accordingly, as a consequence of the foregoing, Domino is entitled to recover all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, other expenses paid on her behalf, lost revenues and expenses as a result of her misconduct, revenues collected by Ambridge through the conduct described above, plus interest costs, and reasonable attorneys’ fees as allowable by law.

FOURTH COUNTERCLAIM

(Tortious Interference With Contract, asserted by Domino)

109. Domino repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 - 108 above as if fully set forth herein.

110. Ambridge is and was well aware that Leleux's agreement with Domino contains a non-compete and non-solicitation clause. Ambridge is and was so aware because, inter alia, her Agreement with Domino contained similar if not identical provisions and, upon information and belief, through discussions with Leleux.

111. In particular, Leleux's Employee Proprietary Information and Inventions Agreement, as confirmed by the letter agreement dated August 17, 2015 (collectively, the "Leleux Agreement") provides, in pertinent part:

Should employment be terminated during months Twenty Four (24) thru Thirty Six (36) from the effective date of this Agreement at employee's election or as the result of Termination for Cause, I will not directly or indirectly: (i) Cause any person to leave their employment with the Company; (ii) Solicit any Business Partner; or (iii) act in Any Capacity in or with respect to any Competing Business located within the United States for the period of six (6) months immediately following termination of my employment with the Company. . . . The foregoing time frames shall be increased by the period of time from the commencement of any violation of the foregoing provisions until such time as I have cured such violation. (Emphasis added).

112. Ambridge intentionally induced Leleux to breach the Leleux Agreement with Domino or otherwise rendered his performance impossible by causing Leleux to solicit Abrams Books, a "Business Partner" of Domino to publish their joint book, entitled "Southern Style Now" in violation of the non-solicitation provision set forth in subsection (ii) quoted above. Further, Ambridge caused Leleux to breach the non-compete provision quoted at subparagraph (iii) above by pursuing the Book. Ambridge and Leleux have conceded that the Book directly competes with Domino and its book "Domino: the book of Decorating", such as by describing their book as "Domino meets Garden & Gun".

113. As a result, Domino has suffered damages. In particular, Domino paid Leleux compensation and other benefits in consideration of Leleux's non-competition and non-solicitation agreements. As a result of Leleux's breach as induced by Ambridge, Domino has not received the full value of such compensation and/or other benefits, and has been damaged thereby. Further, Domino is entitled to recover any ill-gotten revenues received by Ambridge arising from her tortious interference with contract and the resulting competing venture.

114. Accordingly, as a consequence of the foregoing, Domino is entitled to recover the value of any and all compensation and other benefits paid to Leleux in consideration of Leleux's non-competition and non-solicitation agreements, as well as any revenues received by Ambridge arising from the competing venture, plus interest, costs, reasonable attorneys' fees, and punitive damages, as allowable by law.

WHEREFORE, Defendants demand judgment:

- (i) dismissing Plaintiff's claims with prejudice;
- (ii) on the First Counterclaim, awarding Domino all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, other expenses paid on her behalf, lost revenues and expenses as a result of her misconduct, and revenues collected by Ambridge arising from her misconduct as a faithless servant;
- (iii) on the Second Counterclaim, awarding Domino all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, other expenses paid on her behalf, lost revenues and expenses as a result of her misconduct, revenues collected by Ambridge through her breaches of her fiduciary duty, and damages caused to Domino as the result of Ambridge's destruction of evidence;
- (iv) on the Third Counterclaim, awarding Domino all compensation paid to Ambridge, including salary, health insurance premiums paid on her behalf, lost revenues or expenses as a result of her misconduct, and revenues collected by Ambridge through the conduct described above;
- (v) on the Fourth Counterclaim, awarding Domino all compensation and other benefits paid to Leleux in consideration of Leleux's non-competition and non-solicitation agreements, as well as any revenues received by Ambridge arising from the competing venture;
- (vi) awarding Defendants their interest, costs, attorney's fees and expenses as allowable by law; and
- (vii) such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.
